Summary: He had been having dreams about her for the past month and he just couldn't get her out of his mind. You can imagine his surprise and shock when he sees her in his classroom the next night as his newest teacher. He just had to figure out just who she was and why she was in his dreams. "...One by One the Kings shall fall. His puppet son he shall take."

My Dream Girl

My Dream Girl

Shiki Senri x Sakura Haruno

He had been having dreams about her for almost a month now. The same thing over and over again but tonight was different. It wasn't the same one he had been having for the last month. She wasn't on the swings bathing in the moonlight in the white lolita dress that had a black bow on it, her long pink hair wasn't grazing the floor and her pretty soft smile wasn't on her face.

No this time she was walking in the rain with a black victorian umbrella spread out behind her, dressed in a black lolita dress and black lace stockings. The rain was pouring badly around her form but her steps in the night did not falter. Her black closed toe lace-up stiletto heel boots made faint noises as it stepped in the small puddles of water. Her hair was no longer that bubblegum shade of pink but now more of a reddish pink color and not as long as it was, it now went only to her lower back. A small hat hair piece sat slanted on her head and her once apple green eyes were now a emerald green colored with black kohl around her eyes making them pop out even more in her dark clothing choice.

And unlike every other dream where she only had a smile on her face this time her cherry red lips were moving. He couldn't hear her but he could read her lips.

"_Pitter Patter the rain goes. The butterfly will fall for the King, the rose will wilt. Her purity gone with the red in his eyes. The silver rose will give into the red. One by One the Kings shall fall. His puppet son he shall take."_

He jerked out of his bed with a sweat. Covering his left eye in slight pain he ripped the blanket off his sweaty body and headed to the bathroom. Twisting the handle of his bedroom door he made his way out into the hall and in the bathroom that was down the hall.

Stepping into the bathroom he washed his face and looked into the mirror to see the face of the girl in his dreams staring back at him. In shock he turned around to see nothing was behind him turning back to the mirror there was no one there.

He shrugged it off as nothing as he made his way back to his room in Moon Dorm. Not even noticing the shadow that passed the window as Shiki fell back into an uneasy sleep. Besides he had school in a bit.

The figured sang as she walked in the rainy night. Making her way to the school gates she had a doll like look on her face. Her cat shaped emerald green eyes were framed nicely by her reddish pink hair and with her narrow jawline and sharp straight nose. She looked like a China Doll with her pale snow white porcelain skin, nice curved body and at a perfect height of 5'5 for her appearance of the age of 21.

One foot in front of the other, heel, toe, heel, toe, her hips swaying side to side. The sound of footsteps on pavement and water was the only sound from her besides the small noise of her humming.

She walked on as the rain came down harder, making her way to the larger gates that fenced off everyone and anything else from what was on the other side of the gates. Looking up at the castle-like building that was 3 stories with a huge forest surrounding the building.

Suddenly the harsh rain stopped all at once, every raindrop stopping in mid-fall. Everything was silent. No humming, no rain falling, no more steps.

Her emerald green eye seemed to glow as she stared up at the building eyeing it up and down. She could tell that this building was the biggest one and the main building.

"Kaien seems to have accomplished his dream I see. A school for both humans and vampires, hm the idea is still so ridicules." The girl laughed to herself as she took one step forward before she completely disappeared and the rain began to fall once again.

Everything was quiet in the middle of the night. Everyone was asleep, not even aware of the dark aura that had entered the school grounds. But some didn't really count seeing as they were wide awake and had enhanced senses. They had sensed the dark aura the moment it had stepped even a foot near the gates, but that wasn't the part that bothered them it was when it had just suddenly disappeared and then reappeared inside school grounds. None the less inside the Head Master's office.

Kaien was standing in front of his window when she entered his office. He made no move to show that he noticed her appearance. The office was quite, the only sound you could hear was the sound of the raindrops hitting the glass window.

"I must say Kaien, I'm a bit disappointed." Her velvet rich voice rang in the office. She traced along the rim of the cushion seat.

"Oh, what a pleasure to see you again, Sakura-Hime." Kaien turned around and acted as though he was surprised to see her.

"Cut the act, Kaien. I only came here to see her." Sakura stated as she rolled her emerald eyes and sat on the cushioned seat.

"Who? I have no idea what you are talking about, Hime. How bout some tea." Kaien suggested as he gave her a very fake bright smile.

"You know who. I'm talking about that niece of mine. The one you took from me and brought her here. To this, what is this again? A school right, for vampires and humans. I still do laugh at that." Sakura snarled at him. Kaien just kept a calm composure as he set down a cup of Rosebud Tea in front of her. She took the cup and from the white and gold cup as she looked around the room, inspecting it to be more precise.

"I see you haven't changed much, still bitter and revengeful as ever if not more." Kaien smiled at her as she gave him a blank look.

"And I see that you have. You look more human than you really are. I truly miss the Kaien of before, the one with blood on his hands and a grin of blood lust on his face." Sakura took another sip from her drink as she saw Kaien grip his handle tighter than needed.

"Haha, well people do change over time." His bright smile still on her face, it sickened her. She wanted the old Kaien back, the one before he had befriended her sister.

"I will not ask again, Kaien. Where is she." Her question was more of a statement.

"Oh and just who are you looking for, Hime?" A name male voice asked Sakura. She turned her head to the side ever so slightly to look at the boy standing by the door. Tall, dark and handsome. Pale skin with dark wine-red hair and red-brown eyes.

"Kaname."
